

Georgia Austin, MSACN

Georgia is adjunct faculty at New York Chiropractic College's Masters of Science Applied Clinical Nutrition program, from which she graduated in 2008. She is also a Certified First Line Therapy therapeutic lifestyle educator and has been employed by Metagenics as a Senior Functional Medicine Consultant for the last 6 years. Previously, Georgia worked as a Chiropractic Assistant and Lifestyle Educator as well as a Biochemist/Analyst for Recra Environmental. She holds a Bachelor of Science in Biology from Westminster College, New Wilmington, PA. Georgia has lectured across the state to healthcare professionals, students, and the public and has a vision to change the face of healthcare by helping people achieve their genetic potential through nutrition.